

Public Administration in the Context of Global Governance

---

Edited by

Soonhee Kim

KDI School of Public Policy and Management, Republic of Korea

Shena Ashley

Maxwell School of Syracuse University, USA

W. Henry Lambright

Maxwell School of Syracuse University, USA

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

---

List of figures	vii
List of tables	viii
List of contributors	ix
Acknowledgments	xi

Introduction: public administration and international relations – converging on a new research frontier	xiii
Soonhee Kim, Shena Ashley and W. Henry Lambright

PART 1 WHAT DOES THE GLOBAL GOVERNANCE CONTEXT MEAN FOR PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION? THEORY, PRACTICE AND RESEARCH

1 Globalization, global governance and public administration	3
Laurence J. O'Toole, Jr.
2 Toward an 'open-systems' perspective of global public administration citizenship	9
Rosemary O'Leary
3 Building public administration theory for global governance	15
James L. Perry
4 Public administration and a changing context	22
Jamil E. Jreisat
5 Transboundary leadership in science and technology: the International Space Station	28
W. Henry Lambright
6 Global rulemaking and institutional forms	35
Jonathan G.S. Koppell

PART 2 ADMINISTRATIVE DIMENSIONS IN GLOBAL GOVERNANCE: AUTONOMY, LEGITIMACY AND INFLUENCE

7	The independent influence of international public administrations: contours and future directions of an emerging research strand Per-Olof Busch	45
8	The autonomy of international bureaucracies Michael W. Bauer and Jörn Ege	63
9	Collaborative problem solving in a fractured world: a perspective on the role of global-scale institutions and administrators in the context of climate change Paul D. Hirsch	85
10	Regulation in crisis: reputation, capacity and limitations Martin Lodge	96
11	Negotiating and adapting optimal integration: transnational economic integration and the public management challenge Ole Gunnar Austvik	116
12	Emerging patterns of regional governance in East Asia Sunhyuk Kim	138
PART 3 GLOBAL HEALTH: EXAMINING THE PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS NEXUS
13	A case study of the expanding role of the OECD in global health governance: combining public administration and international relations perspectives to identify internal and external drivers Adrian Kay and Peter Carroll	155
14	The emergence of governance capacity in global policy implementation: evidence from managing transnational public health crises Allen Yu-Hung Lai	169
15	Insights from public administration scholarship for addressing global health governance challenges Edward W. Malone, Yusra R. Shawar and Jeremy Shiffman	189
	Conclusion: core themes and future challenges for public administration in the global governance context W. Henry Lambright, Shena Ashley and Soonhee Kim	202
	Index	211

Figures

---

8.1	The different dimensions of structural bureaucratic autonomy	73
10.1	Trends in criticisms of regulatory capacity	101
11.1	Short- and long-term effects of trade liberalization	129

Tables

---

8.1	The different organizational bodies of IGOs	74
8.2	Intra-organizational perspective on IGOs	75
8.3	The five dimensions of bureaucratic autonomy and suggested measurement	76
8.4	Patterns of bureaucratic autonomy in ten organizations	78
14.1	Comparison of H1N1 pandemics in Singapore and Taiwan	172
14.2	List of organizations in our study	174
14.3	Comparison of governance capacity between groups and countries	181